Trauma-Informed Pelvic Care

With guest speaker
Stephanie Tillman, CNM

An interactive workshop for students, nurses, and other healthcare providers to learn how to provide trauma-informed gynecologic and obstetric pelvic care, including discussion of power transfer in pelvic care, language and approaches specific to queer and trans folks, and empowering care in obstetric emergencies. Workshop will include lecture content plus opportunities for values clarification exercises and discussion of clinical case studies.

Sunday, April 8th
9am-1pm

Vanderbilt University
School of Nursing

Frist Hall 140

Workshop will also be available via live-streaming

About the Speaker

Stephanie Tillman (preferred pronouns: she/her) is a midwife at the University of Illinois at Chicago. She completed her undergraduate degree in Global Health and Medical Anthropology at the University of Michigan, and her graduate degree in midwifery at Yale University. She serves on the Boards of Directors of Nurses for Sexual and Reproductive Health, the American College of Nurse Midwives, and the Midwest Access Project. Stephanie blogs under the name Feminist Midwife, and through that blog and her clinical practice seeks to engage providers and consumers in conversations about sex positivity, empowerment and power-transfer, trauma-informed care, consent and values clarification. Find her on social media @FeministMidwife.

Space is limited. To reserve your spot or sign up for live-streaming, please RSVP no later than April 1:
https://goo.gl/forms/EUNYZsosTZtfwFF2

Questions? Contact megan.j.lewis@vanderbilt.edu